Thriller “Radio Silence” starts shooting in Montreal

Montreal, July 16, 2018 – This morning, in Montreal, has begun principal photography of RADIO SILENCE, starring Georgina Haig (The Crossing; Crawl; Road Train). The movie also co-stars Canadian actors John Ralston (Good God; Pound of Flesh; The Lizzie Borden Chronicles) and Carrie-Lynn Neales (Seed; Separated at Birth). Philippe Gagnon, Montreal filmmaker, is directing the movie. RADIO SILENCE is written by Richard M. Dumont.

“We are pleased to be producing Incendo’s latest thriller RADIO SILENCE with a local Montreal crew and the majority of a Canadian cast. Our English language films enable us to showcase Canadian talent on an international scale” says Jean Bureau, President & CEO of Incendo

RADIO SILENCE: Relationship Therapist, Dr. Jill Peterman, had the highest-rated call-in radio show when her world was pulled out from under her following the on-air suicide of a female caller named Alexis. Shaken to her core, Dr. Jill walked away from her show vowing she would never go back. That is until Stuart, the station’s General Manager, pleads with her to reboot the show in effort to bring followers back to the station. Still haunted by what happened, Jill agrees to help her friend out, and believes this will be the perfect remedy to put her year-long anxiety to rest. As Jill starts to settle back in to her show, mysterious call-ins start happening forcing her to believe there could be a copy-cat out there. What Jill begins to uncover is a web of secrets and lies stemming from the mysterious voice she has come to know as, Alexis.

RADIO SILENCE is produced with the participation of Bell Media. Jean Bureau and Ian Whitehead will produce the film for Incendo; Executive Producer is Mr. Jean Bureau.
